This curious account of Jesus inspecting the “offering baskets” beautifully illustrates a tremendous truth. God looks beyond the outward appearance and looks entirely on the heart. Although we might think Jesus should have been impressed by the gifts of “significance and value,” He apparently took no notice whatsoever of their size.

Obviously the widow didn't give her offering because of a perceived financial need at the synagogue—she would quickly have concluded the greater gifts would render her two small coins unneeded. Her giving all she had was motivated entirely by a heart utterly consumed with honoring her Heavenly Father—a worshipers heart. This account is not about money. It's about worship. Jesus didn't set down to watch at the treasury hoping to locate and
